The Institutional Repository, a contribution to the generation of national and global knowledge

The Institutional Repository, a contribution to the generation of national and global knowledge
The Institutional Repository was created to collect, preserve, and disseminate Banco de la República's documentary production on academic, economic, and regional issues, among others, with the purpose of making this information accessible to researchers and professionals, as well as to the general public.

The works compiled on the site have been developed by the different research groups of the institution, as well as by its Board of Directors, its Chief Offices, and other agencies.

To visit the Central Bank's Institutional Repository from a mobile device or a computer, simply go to https://repositorio.banrep.gov.co/, navigate the main menu, and identify the type of document of your interest.

Additionally, in order to facilitate the search, the system allows you to enter the date, title, author, or code, or to query through the search engine by typing a term or keyword in quotation marks (“ ”) for more accurate results. Also, the Institutional Repository has an option enabled for you to download the documents of your interest in full.

Should you have any questions about how to access the information, please email us at CAIE-soluciones@banrep.gov.co

Fuente: https://www.banrep.gov.co/en/institutional-repository-contribution-generation-national-and-global-knowledge